EASTER SUNDAY.

Observance of the Day in Charleston-Services at the Churches.

nunner in most of our churches yesterday. Services of an unusual extent and character were neld in the Episcopal and Catholic Churches while the day was observed in some form by all. The day itself and its associations are among the most interesting and significant which the mind can contemplate. While being a day of religious observance, it is also one of no little joy; and as such is gladly welcomed throughout Christendom. The leading churches in our city were thronged, and the sermons were listened to with great interest. In no a few there were augmented vocal exercises, which added much to the impressiveness of the occasion

THE CATHOLIC CHURCHES the habiliments of mourning with which they are usually clad for Good Friday were removed, and the altars shone resplendent with lighted tapers and a

At the Cathedral Chapel there was Pontifical High Mass, the celebrant being Bishop Persico, as sisted by four of the elergy. Bishop Persico also preached from the Gospel of the day, showing the mystery of the Resurrection to be in a peculiar de gree the confirmation and support of Christian faith and likewise the basis of Christian hope.

At St. Mary's Church, High Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Mr. Northrop, the sermon being preach ed by the Rev. Dr. Baker, the pastor of the church. parration of the wondrous history of the death and passion of Christ; and in exhorting his hearers so to live and die, as to rise again with our Lord in purer and higher existence, he spoke with ever nore than his usual fervent eloquence.

At the other Catholic churches, St. Patrick's, St. Paul's and St. Joseph's, High Mass was celebrated and appropriate discourses delivered by their repastors. St. Peter's, the church of the Catholis colored people, was dressed in evergreens with a neatness and care that spoke well for the zeal and spirit of the congregation. THE EPISCOPAL CHURCHES were all more or less decorated for the Faster time. St. Michael's was, perhaps, the most elaborately decked—the good ladies of that church having labored incessantly during the preceding week to put their venerable fane in fitting trim for the Resurrection morn. The coup d'ail on entering the doorway was of dazzling beauty. The whole interior seemed a wilderness of evergreens and natural flowers, which clung in graceful garlands to ever portion of the quaint old edifice. The chancel espe patiently and defuly adorned it, and the chandelle which hung in the middle of the nave was a mass of flowery fragrance. The service was read by the rector, Rev. Mr. Trapier, who also preached an ex-

At St. Philips' the galleries were richly festooned with cedar and lilies; each gas fixture held a moss basket filled with real flowers; the chancel railing was entwined with ivy; a cross of cedar was in front of the pulpit, and on the front of the communion table were three links of evergreen, emblematic of the Trinity. In the rear and over the chancel were the words: "I know that my Redeemer liveth." The sermon was preached by the pastor, the Rev Dr. Howe.

Grace Church was decorated with much taste The pillars were wreathed with garlands of cedar, whose dark green was beautifully set off by large white roses. Wreaths of the same material wer suspended from all the lamps. The chancel excited especial admiration. The railing was profusely inerlaced with ivy, producing a beautiful effect. A large and elegantly arranged pyramid of natural flowers was placed upon the font, and the Gothi window in the rear was spanned by, a large arch, displaying the words "The Lord is risen! Hallelujah!" in white marbled letters upon a blue ground. An impressive sermon was preached by the Pastor Rev. C. C. Pinckney, and a double choir rendered the music with fine effect. The morning service closed with the communion.

At St. Paul's the decorations were all of real flowers; a large bunch of lilies bound with a wreath of violets bloomed over the font, and the desk and chancel were draped with a profusion of roses, flowers and ivy. In the rear of the chancel were the words, "Christ, Our Passover." The pastor, Rev. Dr. Lord, preached.

St. Luke's had the font handsomely dressed with flowers; the reading desk was also arrayed in flowers with a cross and white ground in the centre. Festoons hung on either side of the galleries. In the rear of the chancel were the words, "The Lord is sen." The services were conducted by the Bev. C. P. Gadsden.

St. Stephen's, Rev. J. Mercier Green, pastor, was simply yet tastefully decked with festoons of cedar and white flowers. The chancel was wreathed with evergreens. Acress the wall in the back ground of the chancel were the words: "Now is Christ risen." The Church of the Holy Communion, Rev. A. Toomer Porter, rector, was also neatly aderned. The font and reading desk were covered with real flowers, and the chancel was tastefully arranged with

The instruments of the telegraph office will be moved into the new office, Broad-street, to-day. The Vane sisters and part of the Templeton Oper etta Company arrived in the city yesterday. The que warrante will be continued to-day. The lecture of Rev. Dr. Persico, recently delivered in St. Patrick's Church, is published in extense in the last issue of the Gazette. There have been ninety-six arrests by the detectives for the past month for various offences, an evidence of the efficiency of the small force now in charge of the office.

THE REORGANIZATION OF THE POLICE FORCE. The reorganization of the police force, under the new bill, took place yesterday at one o'clock, when there was a fermal inspection by the Mayor and the captain of the force. There are now one captain at $1500, two lieutenants at $1200 each, two sergrants at $800 each, forty privates for day duty at $720 each, and forly nightmen at $300 each. The bill called for fifty daymen and forty nightmen, but the Mayor concluded to add ten to the daymen, and to that extent reduce the complement of nightmen, Besides the above enumeration, there are four gate-men at $600 each, six steeplemen at 1300 each, two hostlers at $600 each, and three extra daymen for indoor duty at $300 each. The new organization will go into effect on Thursday, the 1st proximo Some of the old members of the force have been re-luctantly dropped, but this has been made necessary in selecting the number under the new bill. which meet its requirements. To get on the force will require an apprenticeship as a nightman, who has served faithfully and efficiently. The new force is a fine looking body of men, all drilled and experienced, and the Mayor, in addressing them yesterday, made them understand their line of duty in a few unmistakable words.

CHARLESTON BRANCH OF THE LIFE ASSOCIA-TION OF AMERICA.—Less than a year ago some of the principal business men of Missouri conceived the idea of retaining in the South and West the millique of dollars annually sent North for premiums on life insurance. To secure this end, they devised the plan of forming one large company, with branches in each Southern and Western State. The promiums received in each State will be invested there, thus making each branch essentially a home, and local institution, while all the premiums form a part of the company's general assets, thus making it one of the largest, wealthiest and most responsible in the world. In a word, it combines the advantages of 3 local and national company. The bonefits of the plan are so telf-evident that the success of the com-York; J E Wilson and wife, Virginia; H G Robinson, Providence, R 1; J A Bremum, J M Crowley, W U

70 THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS. In the statement headed "A River Thief," in Friday's paper, some inaccuracies occur. It is true that a search warrant was obtained and a vessel "was boarded," but instead of a "large lot of fine japonica plants being found," there was in the possession of one of the hands on board a single plant, which he said the person called the gardener had allowed him to take; and that his account of the transact'or was true, would appear from the fact, that the counsel of Mr. Middleton consented to drop the prosecution, and to the release of Mr. Fawyer, on the condition of his paying the costs, which, being a non-resident, he did, although feeling innocent of any felonious intent.
